

Translation Services Connector for Episerver

Today, many websites are powered by web content management systems (WCMS) and many enterprises author, store and publish content from a central WCMS. GPI has extensive experience interfacing with a variety of WCMSs platforms to help clients author and publish multilingual content destined for an array of target formats.

GPI provides website localization services under a multitude of client-driven workflows including any combination of:

- Directly interfacing and inputting translations into your WCMS.
- Receiving content that has been exported as XLIFF for us to localize and return to you.
- Deployment of a custom connector between your WCMS and our Translation Portal.

GPI offers custom WCMS connectors to a variety of web content management systems to streamline localization workflows and access translation project information across your enterprise. GPI's Translation Services Connector for Episerver enables users of Episerver-based websites to initiate translation workflows with a single click and gain access to an array of reports to track and manage global translation projects.
